FORWARD

This book is a documentation of art inspired by London from simple moments experienced by the artist Kerry Zacharia in her day to day life, expressed in her unique and individual style.

“London in Different Dimensions” is a collection of paintings she created between 2013 and 2016.

Kerry was born in London and is of Greek-Cypriot ethnic origin. She has lived and worked in London all her life. She is a natural self-taught artist who is guided by her vision, instinct and intuition. In a short space of time she has gained quite a following and consistently receives great feedback from her exhibitions and on social media. Someone once commented that her art was “like Van Gogh from another dimension”. Her art is largely received as “different”, “energising” and “mysterious” and as her having a unique and recognisable style.

Whilst art is not her full-time profession, she has shown great commitment and dedication since her journey began. She strives to establish herself as an Emerging Artist and is continually active in her self-representation and ways to develop her art practice.
